- 23 Option (C) is the correct answer. When the subject is made up of nouns joined by 'or', the verb agrees with the last noun. So, here it needs to agree with 'brothers', and hence option (C).
- 26 Option (D) is the correct answer. The subject 'none' here refers to a plural, 'boys'. And so its reference point being a plural, 'none' takes a plural verb.

So, we use a reciprocal pronoun. When such action takes place among more than 2 persons, we use the reciprocal pronoun 'one another' and when between 2 (as here), we use 'each other'.
- 29 Option (A) is the correct answer. The given sentence is a second conditional with its pattern : 'If + past simple (got), would + infinitive (save)'.
- 30 Option (C) is the correct answer. Theology is the study of religion; phenology is of climate.
- 33 Option (D) is the correct answer. When the reporting verb is in the present tense (says here), there is no change in the tense of the reported speech, though prepositions and pronouns change as per the rules.
- 34 Option (C) is the correct answer. Only the tense of the universal truth remains unchanged.
- 48 Option (B) is the correct answer. Irony is a literary device that relies on the difference between expectation and outcome. An oxymoron is a figure of speech where two words of opposite meaning are used together.
