

							1 m i
2 c		h	a	n	g	e	d
							u
							6 e	q	u	7 a	l	g	r	o	u	p	i	n	g
							n				d
8 a		d	d	e	n	d	s
							i t
							i
							o
9 d		i	v	i	d	e	n	d
							3 b
							o
							4 m
							5 o r
							o
							w
							l t
							i
							p
							l i
							c a
							10 o		n	e
									d

2. The sum of three or more numbers does not change even when their grouping is
6. Division means equal sharing or
8. The two numbers that are added.
9. The number to be divided.
10. When the dividend and the divisor are the same, the quotient is always.

1. The number from which we subtract.
3. To subtract, you should do this when the minuend is smaller than the subtrahend.
4. In a multiplication sum, the number to be multiplied.
5. When we add 10 to a number, the digit in the tens place increases by
7. Multiplication has the same properties as